CANDLE EXPLODES FOR YOUNGSTER

Young Son of W. F. Gilliland of Straban Township, Sustains Ugly Injuries when Roman Candle Explodes Close to his Face.

James, the ten year old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Gilliland, of Straban township, sustained painful injuries to his face in Gettysburg on Thursday evening when a Roman candle which he was "putting off" exploded in his hand.

The boy was attending the festival of the two young sons of Mr. and Mrs. Guyon Buehler which was held at their home on Carlisle street. They had a number of fireworks and the Gilliland boy had lighted the candle which was making the usual display. He held it rather close to his face when it suddenly exploded, throwing powder and sparks all over him.

He was quickly taken care of and medical aid secured. It was found that his face was very badly burned about the cheeks, that both lips were burned, one of them being cut and many painful injuries sustained. Fortunately his eyes escaped both sparks and powder. He is now resting comfortably at his home.

The incident caused a great deal of excitement among those at the festival which was quite well attended and much sympathy was expressed for the unfortunate youngster.

All people from the East End of the county have been invited to participate in the big celebration on Saturday. They are to go to the site in carriages which will form a parade through the ground circling around the pretty place and through East Berlin. ADDS $6,000,000 TO ASSESSMENT

Jersey Tax Assessor Hits Oil Trust Hard.

DISGUISED, HE SOUGHT FACTS

Worked as Day Laborer in Standard Plant to Get Secrets—Threatens to Add Another Million to Valuation.

Bayonne, N. J., Aug. 27.—Bayonne is beginning to take notice of a city official who has added $6,000,000 to the taxable valuation of the Standard Oil works at Constable Hook.

The bold man who has dared the wrath of a great corporation is Henry Hinse, tax assessor, whose only reply to the outcries of the oil company's agents was to say that perhaps he would add another million if his figures warranted it.

This promise was delivered to Colonel Charles W. Fuller, counsel for the Standard Oil company. Colonel Fuller, who lives in Bayonne, met the assessor on the street and remonstrated with him for doing such an unprecedented thing as to advance the valuation from $7,360,000 to $13,073,078.

May Add Another Million. "Don't shout so soon," responded Hinse, calmly. "I am not through yet and the first thing you know you may have another million on top of the others."

Hinse is a retired real estate man, reputed to be possessed of a comfortable income and a desire to serve his city in some capacity out of the reach of further temptation of money.

While Hinse was an expert on real estate, nobody suspected that he was going after big game like the Standard. For years the oil corporation's plant had been an institution untouched by any revolutions in tax assessing. Hinse had his own ideas about the matters and decided to get his information first hand.

Disguised as Laborer. As a result, he disguised himself in laborer's clothes, and with overalls and a dinner pail, went to work for Mr. Rockefeller two weeks ago. For three days he prowled about the place, even going on the tops of the big refining tanks to make his observations.

After that the Standard lost its new employee, and he was not seen again until Tax Assessor Hinse made his appearance to inspect the place. He was not recognized as the dollar-a-day man who had been working in the yard, and the superintendent took him around to look over the place.

The new assessor began to ask pointed questions and to seek out various matters which only a man acquainted with the place would know. Then the secret came out, followed by the raising of the valuation by $6,000,000, a figure which made even the richest trust squirm.

Pottsville, Pa., Aug. 27.—At the closing session of the Pennsylvania Retail Merchants' association convention here a resolution was adopted commending Congressman C. N. The resolution calls upon the members of the association to use every influence to have Cannon defeated, and to secure the election of congressmen who are opposed to his policies.

The resolution in condemnation of Speaker Cannon was:

"Resolved, That we condemn the action of Congressman Joseph C. Cannon in removing Congressman C. N. Fowler from the chairmanship of the committee on banking and currency, the office which he has acceptably filled for so many years. We recognize Congressman Fowler as the author of the present gold standard currency act.

CHOLERA SHIP COMING

Infected Vessel From Holland Due at Baltimore.

Washington, Aug. 27.—That the Dutch ship Andyk is enroute to the United States with cholera aboard is inferred from a cablegram from the American consul at Rotterdam, received by the marine hospital service through the state department. The cablegram reads:

"Cholera Andyk Wednesday Baltimore."

This message is interpreted as meaning that the Andyk sailed from Rotterdam for Baltimore with one or more cases of cholera on board.

The vessel is a slow steamer and is not expected to arrive off Cape Charles until about Sept. 8. Meanwhile the hospital authorities will take steps to prevent landing until a thorough investigation shall have been made.

THE FRIENDS OF BENZOATE WIN

Findings of Remsen Board Endorsed by Convention.

AFTER PROTRACTED DEBATE

New York Doctor Declared Benzoate Is as Good as Table Salt, While Cincinnati Doctor Said Government Licensed Sale of Food Fit Only For Sewer.

Denver, Colo., Aug. 27.—After a sharp and protracted debate, the resolution endorsing the findings of the so-called "Remsen board," which declared benzoate of soda to be not harmful when used as a preservative, was adopted by the convention of the Association of State and National Food and Dairy Departments by a vote of 57 to 42.

The opposing forces were the government chemical experts, including members of the Remsen referee board, who contended that benzoate was harmless, and some of the two hundred state food commissioners and agriculturalists delegated to the convention.

Dr. Ira Remsen told the convention that he had accepted the chairmanship of the board of referees at the repeated urging of former President Roosevelt.

"He gave me free rein in selecting the members of the board," said Dr. Remsen.

"Since the appointments my dealings have been directly with the secretary of agriculture. We understood we had nothing to do with the administration of the pure food law. Our function is to answer to the best of our power such questions as Secretary Wilson may put.

"You know the conclusions regarding benzoate to which the board has been led by its work. With the actual experimenting I had nothing to do."

No More Harmful Than Salt.

"I believe sodium benzoate is no more harmful than corresponding amounts of table salt," said Dr. Russell H. Chittenden, of New York.

IRA REMSEN. base this opinion on the board's experiments for three months with six young men, to whom we administered benzoate in doses as large as four grains per day in their food."

As showing that benzoate does not cover up inferiority, Dr. John H. Long, of Evanston, Ill., said he had made catnip out of rotten tomatoes, apples, peaches and bananas. In one portion was put vinegar and spices and in another benzoate, and the only portion which tasted good was that in which vinegar and spices had been mixed.

Attacked Findings of Board.

Dr. Charles A. L. Reed, of Cincinnati, O., in attacking the famous Remsen referee board of scientific experts, declared that the board, in urging the government to allow the use of benzoate of soda as a food preservative, had ignored the public welfare.

"That recommendation to the department of agriculture benefitted only two classes of people," asserted Dr. Reed. "These were the manufacturers of food of such a character that it could not be sold without being preserved by the addition of a chemical and the makers of benzoate."

"The public received no benefit, but instead had its own government licensing food for its consumption which had to be medicated and which otherwise would be fit only for the sewer."

"The referee board experimented with healthy young men at Chicago, New York and New Haven, but all of these young men were stuffed with great quantities of food while taking the samples of benzoate of soda, and the results observed in them would not apply to the average consumer."

"Baby's Never Ill"—Remedy FREE

Summer after summer Dr. Caldwell is in receipt of hundreds of letters from mothers all over the country thanking him for keeping their children in good health these hot days. The way is simple for any mother. If the child breaks out with sores, if it scratches itself, if it has no appetite and doesn't sleep well, if its bowels are constipated or too loose, do not become alarmed, but try a dose at bedtime of DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN. There is no remedy so effective in the digestive ailments of children, and so well liked by them for its pleasant taste and non-grating, than this very same DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN. Ask the druggist who has your confidence and he will tell you that more mothers are buying this remedy today than any other. It is not to be compared to the ordinary laxative, because this contains tonic properties that help to build up the child; nor is it to be compared to salts and purgative waters, for they do but temporary good, nor to tablets or pills, which often gripe and are difficult to take. It is especially the right remedy for women and old folks because of its gentle action. Your druggist will sell you a bottle for 50 cents or $1.00, according to size.

Those who have never yet used DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN and would like to make a test of it before buying in the regular way of their drug store, can obtain a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE either for themselves or any member of their family by sending name and address to the doctor. The sample will be sent to your home free of charge. In this way you can find out what it will do without cost. Also, if the case presents difficulties that doctors and other remedies seem unable to overcome, write a letter to Dr. Caldwell explaining how the person suffers and he will give you his best MEDICAL ADVICE based on half a century of experience in should send for "SCIENCE SUGGESTIONS TO MOTHERS," containing the doctor's advice on diet, hygiene, etc., in hot weather—a very important subject. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 521 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill.

REAL CO-OPERATION.

How a New Jersey Grange Helped the Fruit Growers.

Better Freight Rates Were Secured When the Farmers Got Together and Demanded Them—Co-operation in Massachusetts and Connecticut.

How the grange can co-operate in securing better railroad freight rates is very well illustrated at Moorestown, N. J. The grange at that place appointed what is known as a grange strawberry committee to investigate the cause of the delayed shipments of strawberries to the markets and the impossibility of their getting top market prices in Philadelphia, where the markets are glutted most of the time. It was formerly the custom to cart the berries to Philadelphia, there being no satisfactory freight service, and frequently the crops did not net the growers anything.

Now by organization and work of the grange strawberry committee all this is changed. The berries are no longer all carted to Philadelphia to glut the market, but by the aid of the fast freight cars can be diverted to any city where there is a shortage, and, as the cars are refrigerated, they can be held a day or so if necessary, although this matters little to the farmers, as the buyers are on the ground there and they receive their checks for the berries when they are loaded on the cars, all further expense being borne by the buyer, not the farmer.

This new method of shipping has also prevented "knocking down" by the commission men, a practice in the past only too frequent. One farmer from Moorestown, thinking he was not getting proper returns from his berries shipped to the New York market about a year ago, went on to that city and purchased some of his own berries at a price considerably above the returns forwarded to him. An interview and a demand for the money due or a warrant for arrest to be issued only too quickly brought a settlement. Since then commission houses have been more honest with the farmer, in that section at least.

On this subject of co-operation the American Agriculturist has this to say: "Co-operation is very properly being urged in season and out of season by farmers. It is the great modifying factor they must control before receiving profit which is their due. Specific progress has been made the past twelve months. For some time Maine has been doing excellent co-operative work, largely through the grange. It would seem the grange is the ideal vehicle through which to launch associated effort, inasmuch as in that farmers are already organized. Massachusetts grange started out last fall with a co-operative company, and it is reported that better than $100,000 worth of business has been done already. The Connecticut state grange is also doing a good work in this line. Good! But great care must be taken to allow no flash in the pan. Dozens of pitfalls are to be avoided, and there are plenty of those who are plotting the downfall of co-operation among farmers. To direct these enterprises let us choose men in whom we have the utmost confidence as to ability, capacity and integrity and then give them our unequalled support both morally and financially."

A COMMENDABLE IDEA.

Maine State Pomological Society Meets With the Grange.

The more the grange co-operates with county and state agricultural and horticultural, dairy and live stock associations the better for all concerned. An illustration is at hand. Last June the Maine State Pomological society held a field meeting with East Haddon grange. The forenoon was taken up by demonstrations in spraying and the thinning of fruit and in general orchard research. In the afternoon there were a lecture on cultivation and talks on the New England apple show and apple enemies—insects and fungus. This leads the Maine Farmer to say that it is much gratified that the officials of the society are adopting this plan of combining forces with granges for field day demonstration work.

New York State Fair and Grange Exhibits.

C. S. Wilson, superintendent of fruit at the New York state fair, is interesting the granges of the state in the fruit exhibits. Prizes of $50, $40 and $25 are offered for the largest and best collection of fruits collected and exhibited by any subordinate grange in the state. The space allotted to each of these exhibits is 4 by 9 feet of table space, 3 by 9 in shelf space and 9 by 9 of wall space. It is planned that this space shall hold 147 plates on the three shelves and the 9 by 9 space to be used for decoration if desired. This is the first time that premiums of this kind have been offered to the granges in the state.

PARIS DOCTOR'S DISCOVERY

Dandruff, Falling Hair are Caused by a Microbe—Dr. Sabouraud Proves it.

Dr. Sabouraud is the leading dermatologist of France.

To prove his theory that germs cause dandruff, he infected a guinea pig with these microbes and in a short time the hair from the animal's body disappeared.

And Parisian Sage, which can now be obtained in America has an immense sale and is highly recommended by physicians in all parts of the world.

It is just because it is the only prescription or hair tonic that is absolutely sure to kill the dandruff germ.

It is guaranteed to cure dandruff, stop falling hair or itching scalp in two weeks or money back.

In warm weather it keeps the scalp clean and cool and free from obnoxious odors. Parisian Sage is a pleasant and dainty hair dressing that will put a bewitching charm and lustre into faded and lifeless hair in one week. It is distressing for any woman to have dull, unattractive hair and women so unfortunate should use Parisian Sage.

Parisian Sage costs 50 cents a large bottle at People's Drug Store and is sold by leading druggists everywhere. The girl with the Auburn hair is on every bottle.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio. Sold by Druggists, 75c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

FESTIVAL AT SALEM

There will be a festival on the church lawn of Salem U. B. Church on the evening of Saturday, August 28th, 1909.

Figures on the number of mules in the country Jan. 1, 1909, are placed at 4,063,000, with a value of $437,082,000, or an average of $107.85. This makes the average mule worth just about $12 more than the average horse, indicating that as a phase of animal husbandry it is a long way from being overdone and will give handsome returns to the fellow who will go into it.

Wisconsin fruit growers in the vicinity of Sturgeon Bay are much concerned over the appearance of the San Jose scale in that vicinity, and those about Milwaukee over the European scale on shrubs in the cemeteries and parks of that place. The infected stock being a portion of an importation from France. The state inspector has the cases under consideration and is doing all he can to prevent a spread of the pests.

During the year 1907 3,507,968 poles were required to meet the demands of steam and electric roads and electric lighting and power companies. These cost at the point of purchase $10,229,642, or an average of $2.92. Cedar poles constituted 63 per cent of the total number and chestnut 15 per cent, the remaining 22 per cent being divided among several varieties. The price paid for cypress was $5.17, while tamarack was the cheapest, costing 74 cents a pole.

What Becomes of the Corn.

People often wonder, particularly those who have traveled for hundreds of miles through the corn belt, what becomes of corn which is grown every year. In the year 1908, when the total crop was 2,696,000,000 bushels, 241,000,000 bushels were consumed in flour and grist mill products, 8,000,000 bushels in the manufacture of starch, 9,000,000 bushels for malt liquors, 17,000,000 bushels in the production of distilled liquors, 40,000,000 bushels for glucose, 190,000,000 bushels for export and 13,000,000 bushels for seed, making a total of 518,000,000 bushels, or 19.3 per cent of the entire crop. The remaining 80.7 per cent, or 2,118,000,000 bushels, seems to have been used almost entirely for feeding.

A Wonderful Blackberry.

Although the planting season for many fruits is gone, it is not too late to mention a species of blackberry known as the Logan. It is very successful in England and can be adapted to some climates in our country. It yields wonderful crops. While the plants are perfecting their fruits new canes, somewhat like those of the raspberry, spring from the base. This is the next season's fruiting wood and must be attended to. The Logan berry makes a very free growth, and winds soon twist the shoots, which must then be supported. After the crop has been gathered the old fruiting wood is cut out, and the new shoots from the base take its place. The plants fruit in July and August and do well on a north wall or high fence or may be trained to wires or iron hurdles. The fruits are esteemed for preserving. Much the same culture is required where the blackberry is grown in the garden. The wineberry is an excellent fruit for preserving or for tarts and is prolific. It makes a strong growth and requires a similar treatment to the Logan berry. It is welcome in the shrubbery or on a fence, and it makes much wood. Other berries such as the berberis are grown for garnishing and generally as bushes in shrubberies.

The boy who doesn't have gumption and backbone enough to say "No!" when occasion requires never has a "Yes!" for any proposition which amounts to a hill of beans.

STABLE VENTILATION.

A Striking Illustration of the Value of Pure Air.

An enthusiastic dairyman recently said that when his stock was tested for tuberculosis only one animal reacted. Others that had been standing near her for several months passed the test without a shade of suspicion.

The one that reacted was just an ordinary cow, and she was speedily segregated from the herd. Those standing near her were valuable grades or pure breeds, and it is a wonder that they had not caught the disease by virtue of the fact that they stood so close to the reacting animal in the stable.

This man said that he placed the whole credit of this upon his system of ventilation. He uses a modified King system, and, while his barn is not new or modern, he is able to keep the air pure at all times without chilling the cows or causing them any discomfort. He said that the ventilator did not cost him over $10, and he felt sure that it had saved him hundreds of dollars' worth of valuable stock.

Here is a striking illustration of the value of ventilation. A farmer hesitates to provide his cattle with pure air by the approved method, and as a result he finds that one or two affected animals are able to pass the disease on to those upon which he may not care to name a price. Tuberculosis is no respecter of breed or blood. It affects the cow whose system offers the most successful home for the bacilli.

Stables should also be well lighted and so arranged that the light will not strike the animals directly in the eyes.

LIGHT AND VENTILATION.

Appropos of this subject, the Cyclopaedia of American Agriculture, by N. S. Mayo and H. W. Mumford, Macmillan company, publishers, says:

"Light is best admitted from above and behind the animal. An excellent method of admitting light is by means of the Sherringham window. The window is hinged at the bottom and opens inward at the top and serves for ventilation as well as light. Abundance of light for stables is important hygienically, as direct sunlight destroys many germs, is a good drying agent and adds a cheerfulness that is greatly to be desired."

THE DAIRYMAN

Before beginning to milk I dip my first finger and thumb in powdered soapstone, says a dairyman. It makes the teats soft and slippery and does not draw flies and gnats like wetting them. The soapstone can be purchased at shoe stores and harness shops.

To Cure Sucking Cows.
If you have a cow that sucks itself while in pasture put an old horse collar on her and buckle it snugly around her neck. It is not cruel, but is effective.

Profits in Dairying.
The dairyman who says that dairying does not pay is ten to one boarding several cows of the poorer type. As sure as he uses the scales and test and comes to know each cow's production he, like all others who have tried it, will gradually change his herd to the high producing kinds. The inevitable result will be a larger profit in his business.

Points of a Good Cow.

There are five essential points that should be observed in the selection of cows for the development of a dairy herd from common stock. First, look for a cow with a large and capacious barrel, open and rather widely spaced in the ribs, which should spring well downward; second, look for evidences of refinement as seen in a head inclining to long, a neck long and slim, crops somewhat sharp and limbs inclining to fine; third, look for the present evidences of good milk giving capacity; fourth, look for evidences of stamina as indicated by good width through the lower part of the chest, by an active carriage and bright, full eyes; fifth, favor the cow that has a nice, soft hide and silky coat.

Handling the Bull.

The bull is a treacherous animal and is never to be trusted. It may be apparently mild, gentle and obedient one hour and the personification of wrath, vindictiveness and stubbornness the next hour. Moreover, like all other animals, it soon learns its power and ability. The first principle to be applied in the training of a bull is never to give it an opportunity to overpower or outwit its caretaker. To this end begin the training while yet a calf. Teach it to lead and never in sport or otherwise permit the bull to have its own way. Do not attempt to drive or corner a bull, for it will soon learn that it can dodge and go where it pleases, and this lesson once learned is not forgotten.

THE KISSING FETE.

By ROBERT C. WARNER.
[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

The fete was a great success. Long before the hour announced for the beginning of the festivities crowds of people were flocking to the entrances of the park, and during the evening many thousands came and went. Of these there were the young and the older, married, the former as participants, the latter as spectators.

And what was the occasion of the fete? An edict had gone forth that between the hours of 8 and 12 any young man might kiss any girl in the park provided he wore in his cap a green feather. This provision was introduced to enable any girl opposed to strange embraces to take to flight on the approach of a would be kisser.

As the clock struck 9 two young girls entered the park arm in arm. One was tall and stately, with very black eyes, a cable of plaited black hair hanging down her back. The other was smaller, a blue eyed beauty, with hair of spun gold drifting in the breeze. They had no sooner passed the gate than green feathers began to flutter in their path. Many a young man approached, but was deterred by a repellent glance from the queenly brunette. For an hour the pair walked about the park watching the others. Now and again some young girl would suddenly dart away on seeing a youth approach whom she wished to avoid or to appear to avoid. Here and there would be heard suppressed screams and giggles, while smacks resounded like pistol shots.

But the two girls walked untouched. Many persons noticed them, but no one seemed to know them. It was supposed that they were of high degree, daughters of noblemen who had come to witness the kissing without taking part in it, and it was even whispered that they were from the court. But there were men present from the court, and none of them had ever seen the girls before. The people wondered why these gallants dared not offer to kiss two such beauties.

Near midnight a man with a black beard entered in company with one who appeared to be his son. It was apparent that both were disguised. Passing the two girls, they turned and looked at them, then, walking in a circle, met them again. At this second meeting the younger man darted toward the blue eyed girl. Seeing him coming, she left her companion and ran away. Those watching these unknown people then saw the older man approach the girl who was left. They expected that she would wither him with a glance. What was their surprise to see her after a faint resistance submit to be kissed. Then when he offered his arm she took it, and they walked on together.

"You are very bold," said the lady.

"Such beauty as yours would inspire boldness in a coward."

"You had no right to kiss me. You do not wear the green feather."

"True, I never thought of that. But such beauty as yours makes one forget."

"You may have a ladylove."

"Such beauty as yours would win me from her in spite of my best resolution."

"You do not deny that she exists?"

"I do not. Whatever or whoever I am, I am no liar."

"But would you break a heart for a stranger?"

"It is she who is the stranger. I have never seen her."

"Never have seen her! What manner of man are you who woos without seeing her you woo?"

"I see her I woo. I have not seen her I have intended to make my bride."

"There comes my friend with your boy. I must rejoin her. This is but the adventure of an evening. Farewell."

"We will not part without the pledge of another meeting. Tell me when and where I may communicate with you tomorrow."

"You may call upon me tomorrow evening." She gave him the location of a villa where she said she lived.

"But you will not. You will think of this affair overnight and resolve to be true to that which I surmise is to your interest."

"Wait and see."

The next evening the stranger drove up to the villa in question. He was ushered in by lackeys with every evidence of profound respect. He seemed surprised. In a sumptuous salon he was received by the lady who had so suddenly inspired him. She was smiling at him with an air of triumph.

"I am surprised to see your majesty," she began, but he interrupted her.

"Majesty?"

"Yes. You were known to me from the first."

"Who are you?"

"First let me know your royal decision. For me will you break with the Princess Margaret?"

"The Princess Margaret? What do you know of the Princess Margaret?"

"Will you cast her off for one you have seen but once?"

"I will wed no one at present. I ask to be permitted to pay my addresses to you with a view to raising you to a throne."

"So you are not so sure of this new-born love after all?"

"I am. I wish time to prepare my people for the change."

The lady turned her head aside. The king took one of her hands in his and poured forth a torrent of words. Suddenly she stopped him.

"I am the Princess Margaret."

"You the Princess Margaret?"
